The Zapad 2017 military exercises are currently underway rehearsing the scenario of Lithuania and Poland under attack. And just as that's going on, coincidentally, an out-of-order and illegitimate conference of the Vilnius Jewish Community attracted about 300 people to the conference hall of the Karolina Park Hotel in Vilnius, mainly Russian speakers calling themselves Jews, with only a minority of people with Litvak blood. A Soviet mentality and style appeared to dominate the proceedings. The urgent matter at hand was seizing power, because now the Lithuanian language is dominant in the Lithuanian Jewish Community, Western European-style projects are being conducted and staff now includes Lithuanians as well as Jews. Community life and activities have become more open, more interesting and are approaching the standards of European Jewry. With that in mind, it was very odd to hear the moderator's words about bringing back the household spirit of the Community from 25 years ago.

Lithuanian Jewish Community chairwoman Faina Kukliansky was allowed to speak and reiterated that under Lithuanian law and the bylaws of the Vilnius Jewish Community the meeting was out of order and illegitimate. Despite the warning, the members of the Vilnius Jewish Community who turned out decided to adopt illicit resolutions at the illegitimate conference.
