On the eve of commemoration of innocent Lithuanian victims killed on January 13th, 1991, by Soviet troops, main Lithuanian daily is publishing a story with a headline about denial of those events and with body about how Holocaust accusations for Lithuanians are fabricated and that restoring property of Jews is blackmail. - <http://www.lrytas.lt/-13263832341326177623-sausio-13-osios-neigimo-industrija.htm>

Kai prieš 21 metus sovietų generalinis prokuroras Nikolajus Trubinas paskelbė, kad 1991 m. sausį „lietuvių nacionalistai“, norėdami įkaitinti antirusišką isteriją Lietuvoje, prie Vilniaus TV bokšto šaudė į savus, o sovietų kareiviai automatus buvo užtaisę tuščiais šoviniais ir tik slapstėsi už šarvu...

Efraim Zuroff How do they explain the connection between those 3 things? Who wrote the article? I would expect such trash to appear in Lietuvos Aidas or Vakaro Zinios not in Lietuvos Rytas.

Račelė Kraučaitė How is it that restoring property of Jews is blackmail, but restoring property of ethnic Lithuanians appropriated by the Soviets is justice?

Karolis Jachimavičius Rytas republished it from "Ūkininko patarėjas". Arnoldas Aleksandravičius wrote it. I used to see that Aleksandravičius name in nazi loving balsas.lt. It was strange for me, too. Maybe something changed after Valatka went out. Can't remember if Urbonaitė wrote that big, ridiculous and amazingly stupid piece about Jewish property - before or after he left.

He just compares denying the fact Soviets were shooting people on 01.13 with some "Holocaust industry", Simon Wiesenthal center, "who works on masonic principles and is speculating about uncaught Jew killers with the goal of preying money from other Jews".

Karolis Jachimavičius I guess he means the Jews who seek justice, not "the clever Jews who know that people lost free will when they faced nazis and were manipulated into killings without their consent".

Karolis Jachimavičius By the way, I think they pulled the article out, I can't find it anymore.
